- (ii) Approved Debt Securities which are transferred to another Segregated Debt Securities Account; and
- (iii) Approved Debt Securities returned to or in accordance with the written directions or standing authority of the Client given pursuant to the Client Securities Rules, but in such a case notwithstanding the Client's directions or authorization, no Approved Debt Securities may be deposited into another account of the Company unless that account is a Segregated Debt Securities Account.

- (ii) Approved Securities which are transferred to another Segregated Securities Account; and
- (iii) Approved Securities returned to or in accordance with the written directions or standing authority of the Client given pursuant to the Client Securities Rules, but in such a case notwithstanding the Client's directions or authority, no Approved Securities may be deposited into another account of the Company unless that account is a Segregated Securities Account.

Certain passive non-U.S. entities which are not FIs are required to either certify they have no substantial or controlling U.S. beneficial owners or report certain information with respect to their substantial or controlling U.S. beneficial owners, or, beginning from July 1, 2014, become subject to the same 30% U.S. withholding tax as described above. RISK DISCLOSURE AND DISCLAIMER STATEMENT

The Client acknowledges the following risk factors in trading futures:

A RISK OF TRADING FUTURES AND OPTIONS

The Client acknowledges that the risk of loss in trading futures contracts or options is substantial. In some circumstances, the Client may sustain losses in excess of the Client initial margin funds. Placing contingent orders, such as "stop-loss" or "stop-limit" orders, will not necessarily avoid loss. Market conditions may make it impossible to execute such orders. The Client may be called upon at short notice to deposit additional margin funds. If the required funds are not provided within the prescribed time, the Client position may be liquidated. The Client will remain liable for any resulting deficit in the Client account. The Client should therefore study and understand futures contracts and options before the Client trades and carefully consider whether such trading is suitable in the light of the Client's own financial position and investment objectives. If the Client trades options the Client should inform the Client of exercise and expiration procedures and the Client rights and obligations upon exercise or expiry.

B ADDITIONAL RISK DISCLOSURE FOR FUTURES AND OPTIONS TRADING

The Client acknowledges that this brief statement does not disclose all of the risks and other significant aspects of trading in futures and options. In light of the risks, the Client should undertake such transactions only if the Client understands the nature of the contracts (and contractual relationships) into which the Client is entering and the extent of the Client exposure to risk. Trading in futures and options is not suitable for many members of the public. The Client should carefully consider whether trading is appropriate for the Client in light of the Client experience, objectives, financial resources and other relevant circumstances.

FUTURES

1 Effect of "Leverage" or "Gearing"

Transactions in futures carry a high degree of risk. The amount of initial margin is small relative to the value of the futures contract so that transactions are "leveraged" or "geared". A relatively small market movement will have a proportionately larger impact on the funds the Client has deposited or will have to deposit; this may work against the Client as well as for the Client. The Client may sustain a total loss of initial margin funds and any additional funds deposited with the firm to maintain the Client position. If the market moves against the Client position or margin levels are increased, the Client may be called upon to pay substantial additional funds on short notice to maintain the Client position. If the Client fails to comply with a request for additional funds within the time prescribed, the Client position may be liquidated at a loss and the Client will be liable for any resulting deficit.

2 Risk-reducing orders or strategies

The placing of certain orders (e.g. "stop-loss" orders, or "stop-limit" orders) which are intended to limit losses to certain amounts may not be effective because market conditions may make it impossible to execute such orders. Strategies using combinations of positions, such as "spread" and "straddle" positions may be as risky as taking simple "long" or "short" positions.

OPTIONS

3 Variable degree of risk

Transactions in options carry a high degree of risk. Purchasers and sellers of options should familiarise themselves with the type of option (i.e. put or call) which they contemplate trading and the associated risks. The Client should calculate the extent to which the value of the options must increase for the Client position to become profitable, taking into account the premium and all transaction costs.

The purchaser of options may offset or exercise the options or allow the options to expire. The exercise of an option results either in a cash settlement or in the purchaser acquiring or delivering the underlying interest. If the option is on a futures contract, the purchaser will acquire a futures position with associated liabilities for margin (see the section on Futures above). If the purchased options expire worthless, the Client will suffer a total loss of the Client investment which will consist of the option premium plus transaction costs. If the Client is contemplating purchasing deep-out-of-the-money options, the Client should be aware that the chance of such options becoming profitable ordinarily is remote.

Selling ("writing" or "granting") an option generally entails considerably greater risk than purchasing options. Although the premium received by the seller is fixed, the seller may sustain a loss well in excess of that amount. The seller will be liable for additional margin to maintain the position if the market moves unfavourably.

The seller will also be exposed to the risk of the purchaser exercising the option and the seller will be obligated to either settle the option in cash or to acquire or deliver the underlying interest. If the option is on a futures contract, the seller will acquire a position in a futures contract with associated liabilities for margin (see the section on Futures above). If the option is "covered" by the seller holding a corresponding position in the underlying interest or a futures contract or another option, the risk may be reduced. If the option is not covered, the risk of loss can be unlimited.

Certain exchanges in some jurisdictions permit deferred payment of the option premium, exposing the purchaser to liability for margin payments not exceeding the amount of the premium. The purchaser is still subject to the risk of losing the premium and transaction costs. When the option is exercised or expires, the purchaser is responsible for any unpaid premium outstanding at that time.

ADDITIONAL RISKS COMMON TO FUTURES AND OPTIONS

4 Terms and conditions of contracts

The Client should ask the firm with which the Client deals about the terms and conditions of the specific futures or options which the Client is trading and associated obligations (e.g. the circumstances under which the Client may become obliged to make or take delivery of the underlying interest of a futures contract and, in respect of options, expiration dates and restrictions on the time for exercise). Under certain circumstances the specifications of outstanding contracts (including the exercise price of an option) may be modified by the exchange or clearing house to reflect changes in the underlying interest.

5 Suspension or restriction of trading and pricing relationships

Market conditions (e.g. illiquidity) and/or the operation of the rules of certain markets (e.g. the suspension of trading in any contract or contract month because of price limits or "circuit breakers") may increase the risk of loss by making it difficult or impossible to effect transactions or liquidate/offset positions. If the Client has sold options, this may increase the risk of loss.

Further, normal pricing relationships between the underlying interest and the futures, and the underlying interest and the option may not exist. This can occur when, for example, the futures contract underlying the option is subject to price limits while the option is not.

The absence of an underlying reference price may make it difficult to judge "fair value".

6 Deposited cash and property

The Client should familiarise oneself with the protections given to money or other property the Client deposit for domestic and foreign transactions, particularly in the event of a firm insolvency or bankruptcy. The extent to which the Client may recover the Client money or property may be governed by specific legislation or local rules. In some jurisdictions, property which had been specifically identifiable as the Client own will be pro-rated in the same manner as cash for purposes of distribution in the event of a shortfall.

7 Commission and other charges

Before the Client begins to trade, the Client should obtain a clear explanation of all commission, fees and other charges for which the Client will be liable.

These charges will affect the Client net profit (if any) or increase the Client loss.

8 Transactions in other jurisdictions

Transactions on markets in other jurisdictions, including markets formally linked to a domestic market, may expose the Client to additional risk. Such markets may be subject to regulation which may offer different or diminished investor protection. Before the Client trades the Client should enquire about any rules relevant to the Client's particular transactions. The Client's local regulatory authority will be unable to compel the enforcement of the rules of regulatory authorities or markets in other jurisdictions where the Client transactions have been effected. The Client should ask the firm with which the Client deals for details about the types of redress available in both the Client's home jurisdiction and other relevant jurisdictions before the Client starts to trade.

9 Currency risks

The profit or loss in transactions in foreign currency-denominated contracts (whether they are traded in the Client own or another jurisdiction) will be affected by fluctuations in currency rates where there is a need to convert from the currency denomination of the contract to another currency.

10 Trading facilities

Electronic trading facilities are supported by computer-based component systems for the order-routing, execution, matching, registration or clearing of trades. As with all facilities and systems, they are vulnerable to temporary disruption or failure. The Client ability to recover certain losses may be subject to limits on liability imposed by the system provider, the market, the clearing house and/or participant firms. Such limits may vary: The Client should ask the firm with which the Client deals for details in this respect.

11 Electronic trading

Trading on an electronic trading system may differ from trading on other electronic trading systems. If the Client undertakes transactions on an electronic trading system, the Client will be exposed to risks associated with the system including the failure of hardware and software. The result of any system failure may be that the Client order is either not executed according to the Client instructions or is not executed at all.

12 Off-exchange transactions

In some jurisdictions, and only then in restricted circumstances, firms are permitted to effect off-exchange transactions. The firm with which the Client deals may be acting as the Client's counterparty to the transaction. It may be difficult or impossible to liquidate an existing position, to assess the value, to determine a fair price or to assess the exposure to risk. For these reasons, these transactions may involve increased risks. Off-exchange transactions may be less regulated or subject to a separate regulatory regime. Before the Client undertakes such transactions, the Client should familiarise with applicable rules and attendant risks.

C RISKS OF CLIENT ASSETS RECEIVED OR HELD OUTSIDE HONG KONG

The Client acknowledges that the Client's assets received or held by the licensed or registered person outside Hong Kong are subject to the applicable laws and regulations of the relevant overseas jurisdiction which may be different from the Securities and Futures Ordinance (Cap.571) and the rules made thereunder. Consequently, such client assets may not enjoy the same protection as that conferred on client assets received or held in Hong Kong.

D RISK OF PROVIDING AN AUTHORITY TO HOLD MAIL OR TO DIRECT MAIL TO THIRD PARTIES

If the Client provides the licensed or registered person with an authority to hold mail or to direct mail to third parties, it is important for the Client to promptly collect in person all contract notes and statements of the Client's account and review them in detail to ensure that any anomalies or mistakes can be detected in a timely fashion.
